- I wish we were better strangers: Parliament's proposed statutory cause of action for privacy breaches may attract class plaintiffs – Referring to living "in an era in which data is constantly flowing across borders", Canada recently introduced Bill C-11. If enacted, it will radically alter the Canadian privacy litigation landscape. Bill C-11 contains the Consumer Privacy Protection Act ("CPPA" or the "Act"), and the Personal Information and Data Protection Tribunal Act ("PIDPTA"), and makes a number of consequential amendments to existing legislation. Bill C-11 would bring Canada closer to the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation, which set the standard for data protection in the developed world.

- My Kingdom for a Horse: Rules Against Price Gouging Come to Ontario – Laws against price-gouging have come to Ontario. On Saturday, March 28, 2020, the provincial government issued a press release announcing that it was enacting an Order to prohibit price-gouging. The press release announced that that Order “prohibits persons, including retailers, from selling necessary goods for unconscionable prices”. The press release also announced that the definition of unconscionable prices would be “consistent with well-established principles from the Consumer Protection Act.”
